

Today is the magnificent celebration of the birth of a giant walking the earth, my mother, Lelda Will. Congratulations and Happy Birthday to a mother who was born to be a mother first and foremost, to the most resilient person I've ever known or will know, the most inspiring person one could ever hope to know, and on top of that and in large part because of all that... the very best business partner I could have ever imagined and had the great fortune to join in a common journey together, each day of which I will never regret and always cherish. I love you, Mom. Happy Birthday. -Nick Will
